

viking times. The neighbourhood is famous for its so-called 'Giants' Walls.' These are great walls of basalt, the remains of dykes, apparently piercing some soft stratum, which has afterwards been washed away. Here the traveller may easily imagine himself among the ruins of old castles, with courtyard walls around him.

ICELANDIC BASALT.