

thou do not, thou shalt withoute do¹ [fol. 48^b.] doute, with an harde iudgement be condempned.
 Specially flye evill company, and geve none eare to soche as comen fylthely, vn-honestly, or super-sticiously. And all wother thynges necessary for thy wealth, doutlesse thou shalt learne of god thy father allmyghty.
 Which hath chosen the
 to lyfe everlastynge Amen.

¹ Dieses „do“ wird am Anfange des Blattes 48^b. wiederholt.